

INFO 5707 - Data Modeling for Information Professionals

3 hours

Designed to meet the needs of the information industry for data modeling and database design for text and multimedia applications. Focus on the application of data modeling technologies to library and information science practice and research. Class projects provide hands-on experience in designing and implementing database systems for information service-oriented organizations such as libraries, museums, publishers and bookstores.

Prerequisite(s): None.

Course specific fees (in addition to tuition and mandatory):

Academic (AF) per hour: $13.80
