LING 5405 - Programming for Linguistics

3 hours

Introduction to programming in linguistic contexts, focusing on one or more programming languages that can be used in a variety of settings. Specific topics include computational database creation, automating research tasks, handling linguistic data types, and extracting data from websites, books, databases, etc.

Prerequisite(s): None.

Meets with LING 4135.

Course specific fees (in addition to tuition and mandatory):
Academic (AF) per hour: $13.80